Help us design our covers for 2026. Whether it's a drawing you've completed; an old photograph from your collection (preference being community activities or scenic pictures as opposed to personal, ie - birthday parties etc) or maybe it's a particular photo that you've captured in the last few years that you think would make for a great cover. Please note photos should be scanned at a high resolution or you can arrange to drop by our office and we will gladly assist. We also reserve the right to edit the photo for best quality and sizing for the cover. We will gladly include your name on our cover as the contributor of the drawing or image. Thanks.

The Greely Expedition

Kevin Toope

U.S. Army Lieutenant Adolphus Greely and his men sailed out of St. John's on July 8th, 1881, on a two-year Arctic expedition to gather scientific data including weather observations, explore, and to try and set the record for reaching the furthest latitude north. They achieved their goal but got trapped by ice and spent three winters under horrendous arctic conditions. Resupply voyages failed to reach them in 1882 and 1883, but an 1884 attempt using the USS Bear met with success and found the emaciated survivors at Cape Sabine. Capt. Francis Ash, who descended from a long line of Trinity master mariners, was the Ice Master, or Ice Pilot, on board USS Bear and was present at the rescue. Capt. Ash is the man at the rear in the painting at the Trinity Museum depicting the arrival at the tent where the seven survivors were found.

The scene they witnessed is described in this excerpt from the book "Track of The Bear":

"It was a sight of horror ----- On the opposite side was a poor fellow, alive to be sure, but without hands or feet, and with a spoon tied to the stump of his right arm. ----- Directly opposite, on his hands and knees was a dark man with a long matted beard, in a dirty tattered dressing gown with a little red skull cap on his head, and brilliant, staring eyes. He raised himself a little, and put on a pair of eyeglasses."

Lieutenant Colwell asked who he was, but the man just stared at him vacantly. --- Colwell asked again, "Greely, is that you?"

The man spoke, struggling to organize his thoughts and words. "Yes," he said at last, "yes - seven of us left - here we are - dying - like men. Did what I came to do - beat the best record."

This is just one of the stories you will hear in our new audio tour at the Trinity Museum. Visit the Museum and take a walk through history.

Newsletter, Issue 59

December 2025

R. Coope, J. Morris, Eds.

Trinity Historical Society held a remembrance ceremony on November 11th in St. Paul's Anglican Church in Trinity. The ceremony was held inside this year due to the inclement weather. The ceremony was led by Kris Drodge. There were about sixty people in attendance. We thank all of you who attended the ceremony.

In this edition of our Newsletter, we present the story of Arthur Penney who is remembered on the War Monument in English Harbour

As always, the THS welcomes application for membership from anyone interested in the objectives and activities of the Society.

Arthur Penney

Arthur Joseph Penney, the son of Arthur Penney and Tryphena Penny, was born at English Harbour on May 23rd, 1892. He enlisted in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment as one of the First 500 on September 2nd, 1914. He was killed on April 14th, 1917. He was 24.

Family Tree

Arthur, a clerk before enlisting, embarked for England on-board SS Florizel in October of 1914. During training in Scotland, he rose to the rank of Sargent and saw first action at Gallipoli in September 1915. He was evacuated to England in December 1915 suffering from trench foot and frostbite. After recovery he was promoted to Company Sargent Major and rejoined the Regiment in France in December 1916. On April 14th, 1917, he fought with the Regiment in the Battle of Monchy at Monchy-Le-Preux where he was declared missing in action. His remains were never recovered.
